

WADSWORTH CALLS ALIEN LAW INHUMAN

Tells Bronx Board of Trade He Favors Amending the Im- migration Act.

United States Senator James J. Wadsworth Jr. attacked certain features of the immigration law as cruel and inhuman in a speech last night at the thirty-second annual dinner of the Bronx Board of Trade at the Concourse Plaza Hotel. Senator Wadsworth advocated the passage of the bill amending the law to permit aliens here when the present law went into effect on July 1, 1924, to bring over members of their immediate families and to permit aliens who fought in the American forces during the World War to enter the United States and to have the same privilege for their families.

"Many aliens who fought for the Stars and Stripes and later went home to see how their parents had weathered the war cannot return, under the quota law, for from eight to fifteen years," Senator Wadsworth said. "The alien who fought for us and remained here cannot bring over his wife and children. Any alien who came to us in good faith before the present law was passed should be permitted to bring over his wife and family."

The spirit in Washington, the Senator said, was for a diminution of bureaucratic power and that he believed that the States and communities would soon be allowed to settle most of their own affairs. "The Federal Government will settle only what it must settle," he added. "As we govern ourselves more, we will be a happier and more contented people."

Senator Wadsworth discussed taxation briefly. "Congress is trying to simplify taxation so the man on the street will know what he owes the Government and the business man will no longer have to employ a lawyer to discover what he must pay," he said. "There will be two million less people on the tax list this year. The oppressive effect of high taxes has been removed and we may now expect the release of those forces of commercial development which have been straining at the leash for four or five years."

Other speakers were Joseph V. McKee, President of the Board of Aldermen, who brought a greeting from Mayor Walker; Representative Richard N. Elliott of Indiana and the Rev. John L. Davis of Oklahoma. John M. Haffen, President of the Board, presided. About a thousand persons were present.

TELL OF NEW ROADBUILDING

Speakers at Pan-American Dinner Describe South American Work.

Latin-America's progress in building automobile roads and highways was described last night at a dinner given at the University Club by the Pan-American Society of New York. The guests of honor were delegates to the recent Pan-American Highway Conference held in Euenos Ayres.

The new roads, some of them built across mountain ranges and hitherto inaccessible areas, were called an incentive to tourist travel and a boon to the commercial progress of the South American Republics. Following the dinner an official motion picture of the United States Department of Agriculture, entitled "Roads for All Americas," was shown, illustrating the American delegation's tour completely around the South American continent.
